

Fulfilling Our Mission to Education

In 2002-2003, the Lottery contributed over $1 billion to California's public schools.

Dear Californians:

On behalf of the California Lottery Commission and staff I am proud to share with you the 2003

California Lottery Report to the Public. This report provides useful information about the Lottery's contribution of funds to education. You will also read exciting stories about winners and retailers, as well as interesting facts about Lottery games and products.

The California Lottery offers its players the opportunity to fulfill a dream of winning millions, while also fulfilling its mandate of providing 34 percent of its sales to public education. In 2003, the Lottery sold almost $2.8 billion in tickets, and contributed over $1 billion to education for a third consecutive year. Together with its business partners, the Lottery is on track to provide education with more than $1 billion in 2004.

Currently, the Lottery is implementing several projects that will enable us to achieve our 2004 goals. Some of these projects include converting to a state-of-the-art gaming system, utilizing a best practices approach to enhance the Lottery's product line, and selecting an advertising partner to implement a creative marketing campaign.

As a former teacher and business owner, I respect the commitment the California Lottery and its partners demonstrate daily to provide supplemental funding to education. As Lottery Director I am honored to lead a team of committed professionals that support the people of this great state with pride and integrity. I hope you enjoy this report and continue to support the California Lottery's purpose of providing revenue for California's classrooms.

Sincerely,

Anthony S. Molica
Director, California Lottery

COMMISSIONERS
